Statement of Work

Scope of Work:

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families, Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR) requires a contractor to develop and coordinate a program to increase capacity of pro bono legal service representation efforts before the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) for unaccompanied alien children (UAC) in HHS custody and care, to recommend models for recruiting, training, and supervising linguistically capable and independent volunteer child advocates, and to facilitate access to legal representation for UAC who are released to sponsors, including coordination with EOIR in providing legal orientation presentations to the sponsors.

Background:

On March 1, 2002, the Homeland Security Act of 2002, §462, 6 U.S.C. § 279, transferred the functions under U.S. immigration laws regarding the care and placement of unaccompanied alien children (UAC) from the former Immigration and Naturalization Service to the Director of the Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR). The Division of Unaccompanied Children's Services (DUCS) was created within ORR to serve this purpose. The UAC population includes those who: (1) have no lawful immigration status in the United States; (2) have not attained 18 years of age; and (3) with respect to whom – (i) there is no parent or legal guardian in the United States; or (ii) no parent or legal guardian in the United States is available to provide care and physical custody.

On December 23, 2008, the William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2008 (TVPRA) was passed. The law modified and expanded HHS' role in the care of UAC. Relevant to this Statement of Work, section 235(c)(5) of the (TVPRA), 8 U.S.C. § 1232(c)(5) states, "[t]he Secretary of Health and Human Services shall ensure, to the greatest extent practicable and consistent with section 292 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1362), that all unaccompanied alien children who are or have been in the custody of the Secretary [of HHS] or the Secretary of Homeland Security... have counsel to represent them in legal proceedings... To the greatest extent practicable, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make every effort to utilize the services of pro bono counsel who agree to provide representation to such children without charge." In addition, section 235(c)(6), 8 U.S.C. § 1232(c)(6) notes, "[t]he Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to appoint independent child advocates for child trafficking victims and other vulnerable unaccompanied alien children."

DUCS identifies care options and placements for UAC in licensed shelters, group homes, secure facilities, or foster care, according to their specific needs. In making placements, DUCS is guided by the principles that all UAC should be treated with dignity, respect, and special concern for their particular vulnerability, all UAC must be placed in the least restrictive setting that is in the best interest of the UAC, and each UAC shall be provided care and services free from discrimination based on race, religion, national origin, sex, handicap, or political belief.

UAC are particularly vulnerable, having faced traumatic situations in their home countries, such as dire poverty, war, forced military recruitment, domestic violence, gang violence, and government neglect. Some are also very young, most have little or no formal education, and are primarily non-English speaking. After apprehension by DHS, and housed in DUCS contracted shelters, these children face a complicated legal system. Professional legal counsel assists in determining if the children qualify for any immigration relief from removal back to their home countries. Other forms of relief may be available if the child has been a victim of human trafficking or other forms of criminal violence. In addition, UAC in HHS custody may have relatives in the United States to whom they can be released while their immigration cases are pending.

Legal representation for UAC can allow for increased efficiency in the immigration court system. Without dedicated, professional legal counsel to write persuasive, detailed applications, gather supporting documentation, and in some cases, provide compelling oral arguments, UAC may have very limited success in obtaining relief in immigration court. Furthermore, UAC without any relief from removal may need assistance to ensure a safe return back to his or her home country. In addition, the immigration system becomes more efficient because immigration judges do not need to delay cases to allow children to find attorneys. Qualified and competent legal service providers can provide legal representation or can successfully recruit and train pro bono attorneys. Moreover, these same legal service providers can facilitate the continuation of legal representation once a UAC is released to a sponsor.

Moreover, appointing a child advocate to vulnerable UAC in ORR custody can ensure the child's best interests are identified. An assigned child advocate spends time with the child and develops a relationship of trust with the child. Some of the duties of the child advocate will be to develop a service plan with the shelter facility staff and child's attorney, visit the child regularly, explain communication limitations and confidentiality to the child, obtain background information on the child, including information concerning the child's departure from his or her country or origin, the child's journey to the United States, the child's arrival in the United States, the period between apprehension and transfer to HHS custody, and time in the United States before apprehension, if any.

Significantly, the child advocate spends time with the UAC and speaks with the child's Clinical Counselor, Family Reunification Specialist, teachers, and other shelter staff to understand the child's current situation (for example, education, therapeutic services, social support, etc). The child advocate helps the child process information and explains the consequences of decisions, and assists the child to make decisions in situations in which the child requests help. For children who are not able to make decisions (due to cognitive or other reasons), the child advocate will identify the options that are in the child's best interests in a written report and will explain why other apparent options are excluded. The child advocate develops recommendations and advocates as to the best interests of the child with respect to issues related to the child's custody, care, detention, release and repatriation as well as with respect to any state and federal court proceedings involving the child.

HHSP233200900316G

HHS intends to develop a program based on the findings of a three year pilot program on capacity building to enhance pro bono representation with the result of increasing the capacity of non-profit legal service providers that can provide high-quality pro bono services for UAC in HHS custody. In addition, this legal access program will facilitate the legal representation for UAC who are released from HHS and coordinate the development of a child advocate program for vulnerable UAC in HHS custody. This will be achieved by building the capacity of organizations to develop and facilitate pro bono legal representation for UAC in HHS custody (including efforts focused on recruiting, training, mentoring, and retaining pro bono attorneys for UAC upon release from HHS custody), and by implementing a child advocate model to serve UAC in HHS custody. Such a model will be implemented after researching best practices and models for appointment of child advocates, including evaluating a current child advocate pilot program in Chicago to assess if this model can be applied at additional sites where HHS has children in custody.

Task Requirements:

- A) Contractor will identify legal service providers and organizations located near HHS-funded facilities. Criteria for the identification of organizations:
 - 1) Average Daily Number of UAC in HHS-funded facilities located near the Organizations;
 - 2) Capacity and Resources of the Organization;
 - 3) Organization's experience in providing immigration legal services;
