Dear Author:

Thank you for your request to reproduce and/or display your article, in print and/or electronic form. Permission is granted to you, on the following terms and conditions, to use solely the article you authored on the following terms and conditions:

1. If any material in our work credits another source, then you must obtain authorization from that original source.
2. Appropriate credit to our publication must appear on every copy of the work and on-screen for viewers of the electronic version each time it is accessed. The publication credit must include the following: article title, source publication, including volume, issue and date, and the identical copyright notice as it appears in the publication.
3. The following disclaimer must appear on all printed copies and the electronic version of the work: “This information or any portion thereof may not be copied or disseminated in any form or by any means or downloaded or stored in an electronic database or retrieval system without the express written consent of the American Bar Association.”
4. This permission grant pertains solely to the text portion of the requested materials. Should any photographs, illustrations, cartoons, advertisements, etc. appear on a page with the requested text, those portions should be blocked out before reproduction, as well as text from other articles. The reproduction of covers and mastheads of ABA publications is strictly prohibited.

Sincerely,
Kim Turner
